

Reasoning and Acting in Language Agents

ReAct interleaves reasoning traces with task-specific actions, letting a language agent plan, act, and adjust as it goes. Combined with task decomposition, it underpins many agent planning designs.

Frameworks such as LangGraph orchestrate these steps as a state graph, where each reasoning or acting step becomes a node and edges express the control flow. This makes long-horizon agent workflows easier to reason about.