

Preface

This short fixture PDF exists to exercise franklin's PDF ingest. It contains three chapters with distinct font patterns so the layout-aware extractor has something to work with.

Chapter 1: Service Objects

Service objects encapsulate a single business operation.

Below is an example in Ruby, set in a monospace font so the extractor can recognize it as a code block.

```
class PostPublishService < ApplicationService def call(post:)
    post.publish!
  end
end
```

Chapter 2: Form Objects

Form objects wrap multi-model form submissions in an Active Model-compatible interface. This chapter contains no code examples, only prose explaining the pattern.