IT field has always been an attractive careerpath to choose and now than ever before the demand in labor is high as is the number of competitors. Landing a job in this field has become so difficult and demanding especially when you are just a starting computer science student, therefore, I believe that he intership is a crucial part in a lifelong career. From all my previous experiences I polished up my communication, organizational and interpersonal skills which are significant to this position. Moreover, being used to study independtly, my passion to the field of IT and hard-working attitude make me an ideal cantidate.

With my experience and persistence, I will do my best to assist in development and management of IT projects. I am always eager to learn something new and grow in IT industry, so one day I may also become a specialist. Please contact me at your earliest convenience to further discuss how my work history and personality fit the IT intern role.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
