Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra (September 29th, 1547 (assumed) – April 22nd, 1616).

Don Quixote is a novel that doesn't need much introduction. Not only is it widely considered the greatest Spanish literary work of all time, one of the greatest literary works in history, and a cornerstone of the Western literary canon, it's also considered one of the first—if not the first—modern novels.

Despite being written in 1605 and translated in 1885, Don Quixote contains a surprising amount of slapstick laughs—even for the modern reader—and narrative devices still seen in today's fiction, including meta-narratives, frame narratives, and metafiction. Many scenes (like Quixote's attack on the windmills) and characters (like Sancho Panza and Lothario) are so famous that they're ingrained in our collective culture.
